Nutrition And National Health

IN RECENT YEARS, the subject of nutrition in relation to national health has again been brought before the Canadian public. Since the beginning of the war some surprising facts regarding the health of our people have been revealed. Canada, with its great agricultural development, has always been regarded as "a land of plenty," yet now we know that over half the adults of the average age of twenty-two and a half years did not qualify for the "A" physical standard set by the Canadian Forces. Mrs. Turner, oils and fats administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, has raised the question that if this condition exists among young men just past their majority, what would be the figures in other age groups? The problem of raising the standard of physical fitness in this country offers a real challenge to us in these times when we are striving in every way possible to put forth a maximum effort to win the war.

A recent survey among the civilian population showed that the average family here was receiving less than 50 per cent of the Canadian Diet Standard. In a great many cases it did not fail to provide all the vitamins and minerals which a keen interest in modern Canadian standards of nutrition has pointed out that people who are inadequately fed are not physically fit, and that they become, in time, a liability to the nation. If this condition is to be corrected it appears that some new system for the production and distribution of food will have to be devised. This, Mrs. Turner suggests, should be based on the nutritional needs of people.

Surplus Of Food Not Great Food products and distribution are linked with agriculture, an industry in which a large proportion of our population is engaged. In the fact that our output of food stuffs is adequate for a diet for our population. Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Pensions and National Health, has stated in this connection that it will be necessary to increase the amount of meat required to meet the needs of even the minimum quantities required for an adequate health diet for all. This raises the question of making increased production economically worth while to the farmer. These means must be found, Mr. Mackenzie believes, and the farmer must be assured reasonable returns on his crops. The whole problem is clearly one of great importance, and the intelligent co-operation of the public is necessary in the effort to raise the standard of our national health as rapidly as possible.

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

Variety, we are told, is the spice of life. It also can add greatly to the enjoyment of the worker's mid-day meal. Imagination is a prerequisite for the lunch box planner; for nothing can perk up a jaded appetite like a sandwich with a surprise filling. Many workers, however, find sandwiches are not, as some people think, a vital necessity in the lunch box. Indeed, they can be eliminated entirely from time to time and other items such as fruit, cakes, or gravy puddings can be substituted. The lunch box menus which do not include sandwiches; yet are very appetizing, include the same:

For Soups
Fish and Celery Salad
Whole Wheat Bread and Butter
Cabbage and Carrot Salad
Canned Plums
Milk

Cream Soup
Deviled Egg and Lettuce Salad with Carrot Strips
Whole Wheat Bread and Butter
Apples

Cream of Tomato Soup
Bread and Celery Salad
Carrot Strips
Whole Wheat Muffins and Butter
Tea

In order to make sure that liquids and salads are packed securely, it will be necessary to have always on hand the proper equipment. This consists of:

1. Standard Lunch Box.
2. Thermos bottle—for soups and beverages.
3. Glass jar with screw top—for puddings and fruit. Clean jam or mayonnaise jars are ideal for this purpose.
4. Paper cups for coffee.
5. Wax paper—for salads and sandwiches.
6. Spork or fork.

So use your imagination, Mrs. Housewife, and make it a pleasure for the man of the family to open his lunch box when the noonday whistle blows.

AIR-SEA RESCUE SERVICE

When United Nations planes, raiding from Britain, are shot up over continental Europe, the flyers know that their chance of escape is good if they can reach the sea before being shot down. The Canadian planes around England, the Air-Sea Rescue service, with its speedy ambulance boats and specially equipped planes, has saved more than 1,300 air crews since 1940.

SWINE DISEASES

Erysipelas May Attack Hogs Of All Ages—More Prevalent Among Young Pigs

This is the fourth of a series of six articles on swine diseases to be written by a veterinary veterinarian, Reginald, dealing with the most important diseases of hogs. The remaining articles will concern the diseases of the sow, the Worms, Anemia, Lice and Goats, Dysentery, Brucellosis, Leptospirosis, Brucellosis and Taeny Parasites.

Swine Erysipelas has been for many years one of the most important diseases of swine in both continental Europe and the British Isles. It made its appearance on this continent about 1930, and since that time has become very prevalent in this province. Swine of all ages are susceptible to this disease, but litters of pigs are confined to pigs under six months of age. It is most prevalent during the winter and summer and fall, but may occur at any season of the year.

What Is Erysipelas? Erysipelas is an organism known as the erysipelas rhusiopathiae. It is very sensitive to cold, and the organism has been known to live in soil or decaying material for many months. The disease is usually associated with outbreaks of this disease in this province. Swine of all ages are susceptible to this disease, but litters of pigs are confined to pigs under six months of age. It is most prevalent during the winter and summer and fall, but may occur at any season of the year.

How Is Erysipelas Transmitted? Erysipelas is transmitted when placed on the skin of a carrier animal. The disease is thought to be spread by healthy hogs consuming food or water which has been contaminated with the disease. The disease is usually transmitted by pigs affected with this disease. They are varied and are usually described as acute type or chronic type. Acute animals may be found dead without any signs of disease.

What Are The Symptoms? Signs of the acute type may die in a few days, while others show a gradual improvement and lapse into the chronic form. Chronic cases become enlarged and painful. Stomach is noted, and the disease irregular red patches, which are neither swollen nor tender when touched, appear on the surface of the skin. These patches are roughly diamond shaped and are called "pustules." Tender swellings may develop on the skin, and these patches appear stiff when forced to exercise.

Skin Type For twenty-four to forty-eight hours after the onset of the disease irregular red patches, which are neither swollen nor tender when touched, appear on the surface of the skin. These patches are roughly diamond shaped and are called "pustules."

Acute Type Tender swellings may develop on the skin, and these patches appear stiff when forced to exercise.

Chronic Type For twenty-four to forty-eight hours after the onset of the disease irregular red patches, which are neither swollen nor tender when touched, appear on the surface of the skin. These patches are roughly diamond shaped and are called "pustules."

Diagnosis The diagnosis of Swine Erysipelas is made by sending a sick pig to a laboratory for examination.

Treatment Affected animals should be isolated from healthy hogs in the herd. Place sick pigs in comfortable quarters, and provide fresh water.

Prognosis Post mortem held on pigs affected with this disease give no definite lesions. The spleen is usually enlarged and the pulp of the spleen may be found.

Prevention Preventive measures are unsuccessful. One trial began in Chinatown, but was unsuccessful until one began studying elementary Chinese. Then he spotted a sign in a grocery store window. It said, in Chinese, "gambling here." Chunk and Lok were arrested on charges of maintaining a lottery.

Conclusion The Chinese things in Moon Lake are quite interesting, but the Chinaman is well-mannered, each is sure that the other will do nothing awkward or embarrassing.

Wax Tissue When you leave home, say "Shall we go?" (for that's up to him). He says "Yes" and goes into the male first, letting her come into the female last.

Wax Tissue She is a bit too tight, so she codifies her too in laughter, so that he may assist her—and she lets him do what he wants to do. The driver for her knows the man plays host on a date.

Wax Tissue Why she's so popular—she's utterly smooth. When given a compliment she doesn't either schmiggle or say "Thank you" but simply "Thank you!" of course "I'm glad you think so!"

Wax Tissue Once she smiles graciously when a man cub, even though he's not her man of the moment. And when a man cub asks her to do something, applying though she'll tell him she didn't enjoy it, too.

Wax Tissue You can't help but notice her charming, correct manners. Our 32-page booklet has easy-to-read rules for men and women dancing, dining, theatre, game and party dates. Gives tips on dressing, eating, talking and office manners. Discusses petting.

Wartime Miracles In Britain May Not Be Recognized As Such In This Materialistic Age

(By Walter R. Legge)

"THIS is a miracle," said one on every hand, but in this materialistic age we do not recognize miracles," was the result of this remark during a conversation with an officer in England. The truth of this remark becomes more and more apparent when travelling in Britain today. In those dark days of 1940, how often was there the thought that God must have forsaken us, yet even in those darkest hours miracles were being performed.

It was a miracle that the Germans did not invade England immediately after Dunkirk; it was a miracle that Hitler attacked Russia instead of England, the defence of the Battle of Britain was a miracle.

Probably the greatest miracle of them all was the rescue of the nearly four hundred thousand from Dunkirk. Few people realize the miracle that man can perform when he tries. When editors of the Maidenhead Times, day, they saw a number of small boats that made many trips across the Channel to bring back that army. Small boats were shown in the film "Men of Mirror" when that epic was portrayed.

Those little boats could not possibly have lived in a rough sea, and the English Channel is one of the most turbulent stretches of water in the world. Yet when these little boats made those trips to Dunkirk and back, the water would roar. We were told that men had to live in their little lives beside the Channel say that they never saw it as smooth as it was then.

Surely that was a miracle to equal the power of the Israelites through the Red Sea.

It is frequently remarked that the way in which St. Paul's Cathedral in London escaped total destruction is a miracle. The reason given is that the Germans tried hard to destroy it. The bomb damage around this cathedral includes some of the worst in England. It is one of the first places visited by Americans who come to see the damage areas. Everything is demolished for many blocks all around. The cathedral now towers up in plain view from all angles, whereas it formerly was closely surrounded by buildings.

The climb up to the gallery outside the dome is about 650 steps but the effort is well worth while. From this elevation there is the most commanding view of the western half of London. It impresses one more and more with the conviction that the way in which St. Paul's has escaped destruction is really a miracle.

It is not always entirely however. Two bombs actually struck the building and another was removed from the grounds just outside before it exploded. The first bomb exploded just over the High Altar and brought down blocks of masonry weighing from one to two tons. These entirely destroyed the Altar and the pavement.

The second bomb fell in the north transept and went right through the roof and the floor into the crypt; but again the damage was comparatively minor although the floor of the north transept and the four floors out of plumb, and beams have been placed to prevent further movement.

When the area around the cathedral is studied, and the bombs which fell on it taken into consideration, it is no wonder that everyone remarks that it is a miracle that St. Paul's is still standing.

Vision Halifax has said, speaking of St. Paul's, "Two years ago it was hemmed in by office, shop, and commercial buildings of every kind. All these have now crumbled into dust and ashes under Nazi bombs, and today, St. Paul's stands alone, a silent stand, casting its great cross of gold above the city, sharp cut against the sky. Surely there is something symbolic in that. The confidence of buildings has gone, but the religion has gone, but what really matters remains."

The vicious raids on the peaceful city of Bath where there were no war industries, anything military value will never be forgotten. These raids which took place in April 1942 destroyed many fine and historic buildings. Yet during those raids 92 bombs fell on open spaces or open spaces where they did little damage. One was told this while looking over the city from Beaches Cliff and it did not seem possible that 92 projectiles could have hit open spaces. Surely this is another miracle.

At Bristol as in many other cities, there are numbers of miracles to be seen. Bristol Cathedral stands practically unscathed, although practically all around it has been bombed. One hotel, next door to it, lost 100 rooms.

St. Mary Redcliffe church, of which Queen Elizabeth in 1574 said, "The fairest, goodliest, and most famous parish church in England," has also had a miraculous escape from serious damage while buildings all around it have been battered beyond recognition.

A famous landmark in Bristol was the Leaning Tower of the Temple of the Cross. It was built in 1445, and which was four feet out of plumb. The church and all the buildings around it have been destroyed, yet the Leaning Tower stands up in the middle of the debris, and still four feet out of plumb.

There have been large numbers of churches totally destroyed, but there is a very remarkable thing about them.

In most cases the steeple or tower is missing, as one of the most turbulent stretches of water in the world. Yet when these little boats made those trips to Dunkirk and back, the water would roar. We were told that men had to live in their little lives beside the Channel say that they never saw it as smooth as it was then.

Surely that was a miracle to equal the power of the Israelites through the Red Sea.

It is frequently remarked that the way in which St. Paul's Cathedral in London escaped total destruction is a miracle. The reason given is that the Germans tried hard to destroy it. The bomb damage around this cathedral includes some of the worst in England. It is one of the first places visited by Americans who come to see the damage areas. Everything is demolished for many blocks all around. The cathedral now towers up in plain view from all angles, whereas it formerly was closely surrounded by buildings.

The climb up to the gallery outside the dome is about 650 steps but the effort is well worth while. From this elevation there is the most commanding view of the western half of London. It impresses one more and more with the conviction that the way in which St. Paul's has escaped destruction is really a miracle.

It is not always entirely however. Two bombs actually struck the building and another was removed from the grounds just outside before it exploded. The first bomb exploded just over the High Altar and brought down blocks of masonry weighing from one to two tons. These entirely destroyed the Altar and the pavement.

The second bomb fell in the north transept and went right through the roof and the floor into the crypt; but again the damage was comparatively minor although the floor of the north transept and the four floors out of plumb, and beams have been placed to prevent further movement.

When the area around the cathedral is studied, and the bombs which fell on it taken into consideration, it is no wonder that everyone remarks that it is a miracle that St. Paul's is still standing.

Vision Halifax has said, speaking of St. Paul's, "Two years ago it was hemmed in by office, shop, and commercial buildings of every kind. All these have now crumbled into dust and ashes under Nazi bombs, and today, St. Paul's stands alone, a silent stand, casting its great cross of gold above the city, sharp cut against the sky. Surely there is something symbolic in that. The confidence of buildings has gone, but the religion has gone, but what really matters remains."

The vicious raids on the peaceful city of Bath where there were no war industries, anything military value will never be forgotten. These raids which took place in April 1942 destroyed many fine and historic buildings. Yet during those raids 92 bombs fell on open spaces or open spaces where they did little damage. One was told this while looking over the city from Beaches Cliff and it did not seem possible that 92 projectiles could have hit open spaces. Surely this is another miracle.

At Bristol as in many other cities, there are numbers of miracles to be seen. Bristol Cathedral stands practically unscathed, although practically all around it has been bombed. One hotel, next door to it, lost 100 rooms.

Rebuilding Cities

Spain Has Moved Some Places Miles From Original Site

Today Spain is a country deep in a rebuilding program. It suffered terrible hardships during four years of civil war, and is now slowly rising again. Some spots are being reserved as memorials and will not be rebuilt. Others, like the university city of Madrid, are still waiting to be decided.

But hundreds of towns and villages have been rebuilt, and of these 148 are called "Franco's adopted children," because the state is doing the reconstruction.

To become a favorite "child" a city must have been at least 75 per cent demolished. If this is proved and the town is adopted, then the General Directorate of Reconstructed Regions, consisting of 100 technicians, gets to work.

One interesting point is that whole towns have been moved. For example, the ancient town of Campli, which has been rebuilt about a mile away from the original site. The old town is a heap of ruins and is a monument. Campli, in Teruel province, is about seven miles from its original site. — Municipal Journal, London.

Wild Horses

And Wild Stories That Originate In The West

Wild and wonderful are the ideas about the flora and fauna of the wild and woolly West that find refuge in the minds of natives of the East. The inhabitants of the Prairie Provinces are unusually surprised to hear that they have resources, natural and otherwise, of which they had never dreamed.

Gaston Maran, secretary of the Canadian Horse Protection Society, points to the "wanton herds of wild horses that roam the West." Most of us out here had supposed that these mustangs had long since disappeared or had been mislaid forever. The Maran, however, claims that by putting their money into war savings they were directly assisting the war effort against their country. They are determined to keep the price of war savings certificates as perfect as possible. "We still want to put our money in British War Savings," they said, "but we are not in British War Savings—well, at any rate, the money will be safe."

Doctors at the age of 30 have a life expectancy less than that of the average person.

These steeples and towers that stand as symbols of the past that free people may be given the strength to remain steadfast, and that they may receive Divine aid to overcome the barriers who would destroy the spirit of God.

The miracles described are only a few of those that are to be seen in all parts of Britain today.

Italian Prisoners Wanted To Buy British War Savings Certificates

Italy, one of the most backward countries in Europe, is helping with agricultural work. By international agreement, if they work, they get paid. One day recently a group of Italians were sent to the commandant of a prison camp and made the startling request that they should be allowed to invest part of their earnings in British War Savings Certificates. The commandant exploded with rage when he heard that by putting their money into war savings they were directly assisting the war effort against their country. They were determined to keep the price of war savings certificates as perfect as possible. "We still want to put our money in British War Savings," they said, "but we are not in British War Savings—well, at any rate, the money will be safe."

R.A.F. Bombs For Rommel's Africa Corps

Sixty loads of bombs for Rommel's retreating Afrika Corps are here ready for loading on fighter bombers of the R.A.F. at an advanced landing ground in Tripolitania. Fighter bombers have been the principal feature of Allied air attacks ever since the present attack was launched at El Alamein. At every point where the enemy has had to make a stand, low level bombing and gunning from these fighter bombers smashed Rommel's strong points and set his rearguard in retreat.

Sicily May Play An Important Part As A Decisive Cockpit In Struggle For World Mastery

(By John Cawill)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Sicily, one of the world's most ancient and bloody battlefields, is taking its place once again as a decisive cockpit in the struggle for mastery of the world. Bombed daily by the Royal Air Force and by giant four-motored planes of the United States Army Air Corps in the Middle East, occupied by the German Luftwaffe as bases for operations against the Allies, Sicily, the island of the Mediteranean, is playing a traditional and familiar role.

Since the dawn of civilization, real and spiritual, Sicily has been contested by the Phoenicians, Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans, Vandals, Saracens, Normans, and Sicilians themselves.

Lying farther south than any of the other major islands of the western Mediterranean, Sicily is the triangular island of Sicily. It is the meeting place of three nations, the battle of civilizations, roads, and creeds. It is the natural communications link between Africa and Europe, the lifeline between the lands of the eastern and western Mediterranean.

Because of its proximity to Europe, particularly Italy, Sicily has always been open to invasion by adventurers willing to seize its natural barriers. Greeks, Phoenicians, Spaniards and Italians, and the Saracens, the Moslems, who invaded and partially possessed it at one time or another. But so deep-seated are the individuality and independence of Sicily that any such undertaking must prove futile.

Alfredo Romeo, Mussolini's "Dunkirk," with all the loss of men, munitions and prestige that any such undertaking must perform, still had begun his retreat from El Alamein, Egypt, and all its resources were called upon to lend assistance to this Axis departure from North Africa. Thousands of boats and barges were assembled at every harbor and at sea-heads — Trapani, Messina, Catania, Patti, Siracusa, Cefalu, Agrigento, Licata, Passero, Marsala, Catanese and Favazzina. Most of these cities were the embarkation ports for Sicily's evacuation by British and American forces to reinforce harsher installations and the boats themselves so that when the time came for Axis evacuation from North Africa, Sicily would be left to Allied mercy.

But even greater disaster for Rommel's forces, inching their way out of Tunisia, would not eliminate Sicily as a vital factor for the future. Working ceaselessly and unceasingly, every moment against forces by courageous Sicilians who resent German occupancy of their homeland, the Nazi air force has created scores of exacting targets and has coupled them with the best bombardiers and fighters in Marshal Hermann Göring's arsenal.

With the Axis out of Tunisia, the next logical step might be Sicily, to be followed by a quick invasion of southern Italy across the Straits of Messina coincident with heavy blows against Sicily and elsewhere on the Adriatic coast, Greece, North and southern Italy and northern France.

Hilter's unwillingness to attempt an assault against the British Isles in Cyprus in the east, well fortified, is proof in itself that Sicily will be a hard nut to crack so long as Hitler is able to maintain an air service.

It is apparent with clear eyes to an unadjusted mind of the Mediterranean. It continued existence as an Axis garrison would be a menacing and vexatious strong point to the rear of Allied invasion of the Eastern Front.

World history again will be written along the lava beds of Mt. Etna before the hot, oppressive wind of the dread Sirocco—the scourge of Sicily—blows itself out by early summer.

TOO DEEP FOR HIM

There is a story told and retold about a famous alien who met a British admiral, a naval official, while on a visit to Bermuda. The official became curious when he learned that the visitor was an authority on the mentally unstable and asked:

"Do me a favor and tell me whether you know whether a person is insane?"

"Oh, we merely ask a few questions which ordinary people can answer correctly," was the reply.

"Well, I am the alien," said the official. "This is the sort of thing: Captain Cook made three voyages around the world and died during one of them. Which trial was it?"

"Oh, I say," protested the official. "That means a bit sleep. I'm not very good at history."

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Unconfirmed reports in Ottawa said the next Victory Loan will begin April 26, Easter Monday. The objective is $1,250,000,000.

Good Partner Policy

Will Have To Be Followed If Peace Is Permanent

Recently Walter Lippmann addressed the Canadian Club in Montreal on the subject: "The Good Partner Policy." He said: "The future of the world will have to be undertaken that we cannot win the victory and make the peace and find an order which will endure without some combination of powers which have been proved indispensable in the war." The maintenance of the alliance of the United Nations by the practice of the Good Partner Policy, I believe, our first duty and the duty of all the members of the United Nations. We must have a kind of victory over our enemies and of an ordered world in which man can be free. If we fail to remain the United Nations, we shall fail in all else that we may hope to do."

TEACHINGS AGAINST DRUNKENNESS

Golden text: Strong drink shall be bitter to the soul; drink it, Isaiah 24:9.

Lesson: 1 Samuel 15:16, 17; Isaiah 28:7; Galatians 5:19-21; Ephesians 5:18-19.

Devotional reading: Psalm 5:1-7.

Explanations and Comments
Drunkenness in David's Day, I Samuel 15:16-17. The Amalekites had made a raid on Israel and burned Ziklag and taken captive all the men, women and children and daughters there, together with their spoil. With six hundred men David and his forces pursued the Amalekites and found them spread abroad over all the ground," celebrating their victory by eating and drinking. David utterly defeated them that night, only four hundred young came with him.

Drunkenness in Isaiah's Day, Isaiah 28:1-7. The time is the early years of Jesus' ministry. The prophet Isaiah is speaking to the leaders of Judah in their capital city of Jerusalem and telling them to turn their thoughts to the drunks of Ephraim, the leading tribe of the Northern Kingdom. This tribe stands for the whole kingdom. In the first six verses he speaks of the drunks of Ephraim, and announces the speedy fall of their beautiful city.

Drunkenness in Paul's Day, Galatians 5:19-21. Paul's Epistle to the Galatians is the second book he founded in Galatia, the great Roman province which extended from north of the Black Sea to the central plateau of Asia Minor.

Now the works of the flesh mainly consist of the following sins and proceeds to give a repelling list of fifteen which were committed.

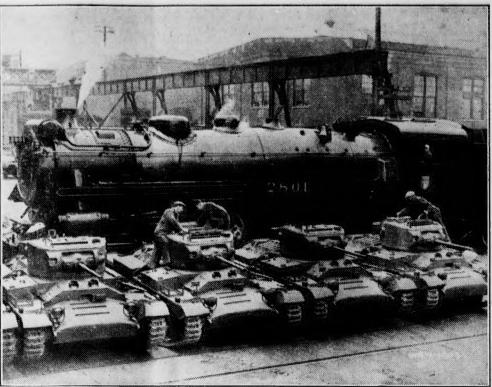

"Paul's Epistles to the Galatians enumeration follows a natural order. The list begins with sins against God; finally there are the sins against society. The sins against God are the first group; the second includes those that are associated with the flesh. The third group contains eight in which the conflict with others is present; the fourth consists of drunkenness and its natural accompaniments."

Takes Up War Work

Branford Man Crippled All His Life

Is Expert Mechanic

Crippled all his life was Arthur Gamble, 34, now a first class auto mechanic at Branford, Ont. Was given him the opportunity to take his place as a repair man with a big transport company.

Gamble says: "It's doing my bit, the best way I know. Our trucks carry plenty of war goods. I'm lending a hand to help win the war."

No able-bodied since he fell dominoes as a child, he's a cheerful, energetic and powerful young man who handles any job, big or little, like an expert. His employer lauds his work.

Gamble states he can, "do a job as fast and as well as any man, me."

He leaves his crutches on the running board as he walks over the hills and goes about using his powerful arms. On the ground, he works on his knees. "They're tough as the soles of my feet," he said.

The world fell into four groups:

The first group includes those who have no quarrel with the other three. The second group is prominent; the second includes those that are associated with the flesh. The third group contains eight in which the conflict with others is present; the fourth consists of drunkenness and its natural accompaniments."

GARDEN NOTES

Gardening Is Essential

Food is just as important as bullets and shells. Gardening may almost be classed as an essential this year. Seeds are not readily available, but Canada depends to a large extent on Europe for supplies and these, of course, are limited. Seeds are now from those limited sections of Canada where gardens seem to be more abundant. The United States is both areas the weather was very bad, and last year there was a fact that there was too much rain at harvest time.

Those gardeners who are able to secure sufficient seeds for normal needs if these are used sparingly and with care, will be rewarded.

Rumanian Doing His Bit

War Workers Hit Ten Sons In One Year

Messi Adolph Mikulek, Canadian

The 60-year-old Rumanian-born war worker at Sarnia, Ont., has 10 sons in Canada's armed forces and it takes a week's wages for boxes to send to each of them.

And that isn't all. Beaming proudly, Mr. Mikulek disclosed that "if the war goes on much longer there'll be 11 in there before their bit."

Five of his sons enlisted at the same time in the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps and have been in the service since the start of the war. All are sergeants. Two more are in the R.C.A.F. two in the navy and one in the artillery.

Besides all that, Mr. Mikulek is making monthly payments on $450 worth of Victory bonds.

The present division of the world into five climatic zones was established in 640 B.C.

A Clever Dog

Squadron Bulldog Was An Expert At Bitch-Hunting

London.—"Bulby," the bulldog mascot of a Canadian torpedo-bomber squadron, was discharged for straying too often and winding up in prison.

Bulby moved from station to station with his squadron, but soon after it arrived at its present base, he developed an acute case of strayedness. "He was a confirmed tramp," the squadron adjutant said. "He was lazy but intelligent, and he knew that if he stood in the middle of the perimeter, a transport truck would stop. Then he would climb up on the truck and jump off when it reached its destination. He never walked when he could ride."

Nobody seemed to like that, but Bulby continued to move too uncertain for Bulby. He took to waiting for busses, hitching rides and going to a nearby village. There he hitched another bus ride, and finished the night in the police station, which was the meeting place for the squadron to have him out.

Bulby was rescued from the law once too often, and the following notes in the squadron's log book:

"The most recent news which has accompanied this unit on all its official moves through England and Scotland, has been posted to civvy street due to his recent misbehavior in breaking out of camp."

Using Magic Eye

Device Helps Royal Navy And R.A.F. To Spot Submarines

The war effort against U-boats is being intensified with new devices used by the R.A.F. and the Royal Navy, which spot submarines on the surface no matter how thick the fog or how dark the night, it has been made

The air force uses a radio "magic eye" for its tracing of undersea craft. The navy employs radio locators.

An authoritative source said the R.A.F. also has been using a new type of delayed-action bomb which explodes if any attempt is made to move it before the set time is past.

Whole factory areas must be cleared of workers where these bombs are dropped since they can not be removed before they explode, it was said.

Study Is Given To The Problem Of Air Traffic

Ottawa.—The Canadian government has given a considerable study to the problem of the control of international air traffic in the future, it was learned from an authoritative source.

In any discussions looking to an international agreement on civil aviation, Canada—because of its strategic location astride potential air routes between the Americas and the North Atlantic—will be a factor of great importance and its extensive development of both civil and military aviation within its own borders—will be keenly interested.

With regard to the future, the government has seen to it that Canadian rights have been protected in all agreements with the United States concerning the construction of landing fields and airports on Canadian territory for war purposes.

In some quarters it is urged that an international agreement be reached before the end of the war in order to avoid complications after the war. It is felt that the negotiations for a reasonable arrangement might be easier now than it would be after hostilities cease and commercial rivalries between the nations become more intense.

So far as can be learned the Canadian government has taken no official position on that question although some of its officials are known to be in favor of early negotiations.

Eight Sentenced To Death In India

For Murder Of Canadians

London.—A British eight-power band of men sentenced to death for the murder of two Canadian R.A.F. officers last Aug. 10. The officers were dragged from a plane by a mob and beaten to death.

Ten others involved were sentenced to life imprisonment and five others got five-year terms.

The Reuters news service did not give the names of the offenders, one was believed to be P. O. Joseph Henry Smith, 22, of Kamloops, B.C.

The despatch said the two officers were travelling from Delhi to Calcutta when a band of 150 ruffians, including eight Britishers and four Indians, who had gathered to protest against the killing of the two R.A.F. officers last Aug. 10. The officers were dragged from a plane by a mob and beaten to death.

AIR BASES

New Zealand Is Willing To Grant U.S. Concessions

Washington.—Walter Nash, New Zealand minister to the United States, expresses the belief that New Zealand would be willing to grant the United States bases here and there based on the war as part of a mutual defence system.

Stressing that such a system should rest on a reciprocal basis, he told reporters that he thought the government would be willing to discuss it with all the countries concerned before the end of the war as an important step toward implementing the Atlantic Charter.

The New Zealanders which should be included in the negotiations, Nash said, are New Zealand, Australia, the Netherlands, Great Britain, China, India and the United States.

THREAT FROM SUBS

Might It Be Necessary To Close St. Lawrence To Navigation

Quebec.—The Germans may consider closing the St. Lawrence to shipping as soon as 500 of their submarines around the world and harass Allied convoys, Rear-Admiral V. G. Scott, a member of the naval personnel on the Canadian staff in Washington, said in an interview.

Should such a concentration of subs come about, he said, it may be necessary to close the St. Lawrence river to shipping and give the Atlantic convoys all the protection possible. He spoke while visiting the Canadian naval exhibition in London.

"We have a limited number of escort vessels," he said, "and Canadians overseas are relying on Canada to assure protection of the convoys. Canadians and especially Quebec people are not prepared to let the Canadian navy decide where the hardest attack can be carried out against the U-boats and it is also up to the navy to allow the necessary number of escort vessels in the theater of operations."

U.S. ARMY STORE

May Be Established In Winnipeg According To Report

Winnipeg.—The Winnipeg Free Press said a United States army headquarter's store to supply needs of American soldiers and civilians in the Alaska highway may be established in Winnipeg as a result of a proposal now under consideration in Washington.

It added:

"Recent fires on the Alcan highway have made it seem desirable that a warehouse be established in western Canada"

"A small staff would be attached to the store."

"United States authorities are known to have been surveying the possibilities of obtaining 50,000 square feet of warehousing on a railway siding here for this purpose."

A DIFFICULT JOB

Finding Enough Workers In France

To Meet War Demand

Berlin.—Police squads have launched raids upon motion picture theaters in French cities in their latest efforts to conscript French workers for labor in Germany, a despatch from Paris reported.

Pierre Laval's government has found it so difficult to meet a Nazi demand for 250,000 men to replace those who have been drafted to man who do not register for work, other reports said.

The Geneva Journal reported that French workers were already enlisting to be sent in building fortifications along the Atlantic coast and the Russian plains.

NEW WORLD ORDER

Envisages A Post War Political And Economic Plan

London.—Creation of a "world political association" and international control of the three C.I.T.O. currency blocs—the dollar zone—was envisaged in a post-war political and economic plan charted by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison in a speech at the Guild hall.

On the Labor's three representatives in the war cabinet, Morrison told his audience that Britain, the United States, Russia and China after the war must mobilize the free peoples to create a world political association.

Hitler Promises Reign Of Terror To Win The War

London.—Reassuring his confidence in victory, Hitler promised a "mobilization of the spiritual and material values of Europe" such as never before witnessed for war, but hinted that the struggle might continue for years and that there still are difficulties on the home front.

He asserted that the gigantic power of the German people, standing behind the new Reich and the National Socialist world of thought which is inspiring it, but indicated that all is not well within Nazi Germany. He said that Europe is faced by the Nazi party "most to break terror with ten-fold terror."

Hitler addressed a 1,000-word proclamation to a Munich meeting of party followers. It read in part for him:

"We still want to call upon the members of the party who are fighting in the streets to continue their resistance to the last."

"Nothing shall we hesitate a single second to call upon the communities which are responsible for the outbreak of this war to do their bit in our defense."

"We shall not scruple about foreign lives at a time when such hard sacrifices are exacted from our own lives," he declared, but did not amplify that point.

"As to the front house, Hitler declared that "in these coming months and perhaps years the party will have to fulfill its second great historic task, namely, to use the nation to strengthen the safety of its districts to strength in weak characters and ruthlessly to destroy saboteurs."

"The party has to enlighten people in every enlightenment is being effected. It has to break terror with ten-fold terror."

"It has to extinguish traitors wherever they be and whatever their dia-

The proclamation, broadcast by the Berlin radio, was signed by the chief of the Hitlerjugend movement, by secretary of state Hans Kerr, and by members marking the 23rd anniversary of the founding of the Nazi party.

It was the second time within a month that Hitler had addressed his troops individually.

He told his followers that they had learned from history that failure from the Nazis had driven them to the same fanaticism that inspires me today with the same intensity and it will never leave me as long as I live."

"I have no right to believe that they have chosen to fulfill their task. Without it I could not have survived all the obstacles and dangers of the power of Germany and crowned them by victories such as the fall of France and the fall of Poland, and at the same time borne the rows which perhaps would have broken countless less strong characters."

From Japanese Prison Camps

London.—Relatives of servicemen and civilians taken prisoners when Hong Kong fell Dec. 24, 1941, were invited at a meeting to a "White Rose" King Fellowship" through which it is hoped to provide more regular news from Japanese prison camps.

The plan has the support of the admiral of the fleet, colonial office, and Red Cross.

Little has been learned of the fate or condition of Hong Kong prisoners when the Japanese took over the island as missing. Mrs. Daryl Tibbary, wife of Brig. O. H. Tibbary, who planned the fellowship, said she is hopeful that periodic circulation of available news would assist in their release.

It is not proposed to furnish news of individual prisoners in the printed news letters which will be distributed, but all available official general news will be given.

Membership of the fellowship is expected to be about 3,000.

Approximately 1,500 Canadian soldiers were made prisoners when the Japanese overran Hong Kong.

Poland Insists On Maintaining Former Frontier

London.—When the war is over according to a Polish government spokesman, the pre-war frontier must be established between Poland and Russia, as an adherent of the Atlantic charter is committed to accepting these boundaries. And, Poland, as a member of the United Nations, must be assured of the right of self-determination.

The Polish government has drawn up a resolution stating that as far as Poland is concerned the frontier of September, 1939—before the German invasion—is still in force. Russia's spokesman, however, says Poland, as a belligerent, has no right to any territories.

The Polish government says it repudiates most definitely what it calls the malicious propaganda which accuses Poland of unfriendliness toward Soviet Russia.

A Polish spokesman recently says: "It is absolutely absurd to expect Poland of intention to base the east boundaries of the Polish republic on the Dnieper river and the Black sea, and to demand to Poland any tendencies to move her frontier farther to the east."

The government also denied formally that Poland ever agreed to any co-operation with the Germans against the Soviet Union either before or during the war.

MEET OPPPOSITION

Axis Forces, Main New Effort To Wipe Out Bosnia

Berne, Switzerland.—Balkan despots indicated that Axis forces, although supported by both bombardiers and artilleries, are meeting fierce opposition in a battle to wipe out patriot warriors of Bosnia.

A British despatch quoting a Zagreb report said 5,000 Partisans had been killed in the first week of the war.

The order-in-council, it was explained, merely extends to the Jugo-Slavian front the existing ban on employing the services of persons who have not been permitted to work. Under the new order, Jugo-Slavia will not be given work areas of its own.

Timber Controller Alan H. Williamson said it was anticipated that the order-in-council will make available 4,000 additional Japanese loggers to work on timber areas in the southern interior of British Columbia, an area which normally provides some 200,000,000 feet of lumber per year.

The departmental announcement said that the employment of additional labor there would have been a shortage of boxes for the 1945 Okanagan valley fruit crop.

Total cost of the removal of Japanese from the protected areas of British Columbia, to Dec. 31, was $4,632,354, said a return tabled in the commons for W. K. Ealing (Prov. Com., Keeston West).

Expenditures related by the labor department in January of the current financial year totalled $334,600.

The mines and resources department spent $1,495,722 on establishment of work camps, payment of wages, food, clothing and other expenses, and $212,450 on appraisals of Japanese-owned land.

CIVILIANS HONORED

Bomby.—Gallantry and bravery during the British evacuation from Burma last year have been recognized by the award of the M.C. to 54 men, ranging from a man who took a herd of elephants over mountain tracks and saved 100 persons from starvation to a Roman Catholic priest who remained behind with some children.

ENEMY IS JUPITER

London.—A Netherland source said the Germans are using fortification of Sichuan to protect another 100,000 citizens from the Hague, Urumchi and other areas and raising large sections of cities nearest the coast for the construction of forts.

London.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden indicated in the House of Commons that the Chinese delegation will visit Britain before returning to China. The wife of the Chinese generalissimo at present is a White House guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

CHAPTER IX

JACK STOREY's aim was so perfect that even he himself was surprised. His legs, bound at the ankles, were too weak to support the knees as they descended to permit the dark-skinned Arab's head to pass between them. He had to apply application of scissors pressure he had Im Zeid in a powerful strangle-hold.

Storey squirmed, curling his own body until his head and shoulders were well under the Arab's chin. The guard's face. He released the choking pressure of his knees sufficiently to allow him to speak. "Wait, Im Zeid," he hissed. "If you make a sound, I'll snap your neck like a dry twig."

The impudent head moved painlessly in answer. Storey drew up his knees and lay them flat on the sand. "Reach behind me, Im Zeid," he commanded in a whisper, "and untie those infernal bonds."

The long arms of the Kahit just managed to reach behind Storey. Storey's hands fumbled awkwardly as he was loosed from the ground.

Hurriedly, Storey retraced his steps and helped the girl to her feet. "Annette? What happened? Did they shoot you?"

"I'm all right," she protested, struggling as he lifted her from the ground. "But you'll be captured if you try to run."

But already he was in motion, as though the medicap of her weight would prevent. Escape was now a very much shadowed forlorn hope.

From the pocket of the pistol he reached the camera, and took the picture of the sprawled men. The American picked up the weapon again, and pointed it at the other's forehead. "Remember," he warned, "if you die if you are captured."

Again Im Zeid bobbed his head obliquely. Storey drew up his neck, turn around, and took the gun away from his ankles alone.

The mouth of the pistol brushed against the hair of Im Zeid as the latter obeyed the order. When Im Zeid had turned, the gun resting again in Storey's hand, he submitted uncomplainingly to his submission complete. Storey's ankles were freed in record time.

Carefully, Storey helped Storey use the fallen ropes to secure Im Zeid, and stuffed a gag into the gun barrel. "Now, Im Zeid, you and Annette, who, with Mohammed had witnessed in silence the dramatic climax of the affair, were torn apart."

Storey, however, the girl in sight, his feet. The two then moved to Mohammed. They were crouched by the side of the shepherd when out of the darkness he heard the querulous voice: "You black devil, why didn't you waken me? You should let me sleep another morning!"

Immediately the Lester was awing up in his blanket, a silhouette against the background of the dark sky, his face turned toward the boulder where Im Zeid was supposedly on watch.

STOREY caught Mohammed by a shoulder and rolled the man over. "Quick! Answer him. He says, 'Give these robes off his feet!' And his own hands took off the cords of Mohammed's sandals."

"Zeid!" Answer met. Sheik Ismeddin was rising, and the two around him, crouching, were still silent in turn. "Zeid, where are you?"

Mohammed freed himself, and looked at Storey.

The American moistened his lips. "We'll have to make a run for the canals. They'll see us but we'll have a minute or two to get away. We're enough to cut the hobbles and ride away."

Like sprinters leaving a starting line, the three arce and few across the open ground toward the humped shadow of the great dried-up river.

A shout announced that they had been discovered. A pistol cracked and a bullet hit the Lester in the back, in front of Jack Storey. Figures leaped up among the Kahit, and raced toward the cover in an effort to head off the fugitives.

Mohammed Ibn Mulai was the lead. Storey, running just a step behind, followed him. He had to empty the pistol indiscriminately at the robed Berbers that seemed to be everywhere.

Then he tossed the empty gun aside and was speeding in the wake of the leader. He could see that Im Zeid was neither ahead of him nor beside him. He was behind him.

Several dark-blue heads lay on the sandy strip in the wake of the leader, some from the ground.

Hurriedly, Storey retraced his steps and helped the girl to her feet. "Annette? What happened? Did they shoot you?"

"I'm all right," she protested, leaning heavily on his arm. "I turned my arm on his shirt."

By this time she had made an effort to resume her run, but her foot touched Storey's leg, and she clutched with a dead man's hand, and was pulled into a roll. Once more had not Storey caught her in his arms.

"No, no, no!" she protested, struggling as he lifted her from the ground. "But you'll be captured if you try to run."

But already he was in motion, as though the medicap of her weight would prevent. Escape was now a very much shadowed forlorn hope.

CANADA NEEDS 40 MILLION POUNDS OF FATS FOR EXPLOSIVES

Here is a day-to-day War Job for You!

There is a serious shortage of Fats and Bones in Canada and the only way to meet this shortage is to conserve fats and bones. Every day we are asked to dry fat, dropping, every day we are asked to save bones. Cooked or dried, fats and bones are good explosives—explosives that work.

The fat patriotic—Add it to your biscuits, soups, cakes, puddings and gravies and make them delicious. Bones produce fat. Also glue for war industry.

HERE IS WHAT YOU DO

Save every pound of waste dripping. All fat is stored together. Small amounts of waste meat, bacon, ham, sausages, etc., can be saved in a glass or paper container. Save a little scrap fat each day. Keep scrap fat and bones in a cool place.

HERE IS HOW TO DISPOSE OF FATS AND BONES

The Marketing Board of Canada, a private effort, is co-operating with the Government in this all important war work by instituting collection facilities. Now you can dispose of your Fats and Bones in any one of the following ways:

1 YOUR MEAT DEALERS will pay you the established price per pound for your fat dripping and bones. You can keep this money for yourself or...

2 YOU CAN TURN THE PROCEEDS over to your local Voluntary Salvage Committee and/or to a registered Local War Chest.

3 YOU CAN DONATE your Fats and Bones to your Local Voluntary Salvage Committee in any place where they collect them, or...

Every spoonful of dripping, every piece of fat and every bone, cooked, uncooked, or dry, must be saved. It's a day-to-day job. Your contribution may seem small, but when millions of people do their bit, the results per week will give us 36,000,000 pounds of fat each year for grenades.

HOTELS, RESTAURANTS—Your support urgently needed!

Hailed Out

— but John Freeman beats disaster

"I'VE BEEN hailed out. But I've got an idea." John Freeman sat across the desk from his bank manager in a small prairie town. John's eyes twinkled but his mouth was grim. "Idea's about all I have got!" he added.

The banker knew John, a hard-working, honest, shrewd prairie farmer, a fighter. "Let's have your idea," he said.

"It'll take funds, plenty of funds, and I haven't any, not now!" said John. "But listen." The banker listened.

"I know cattle," said John, when he had finished. "It'll work—if you'll stule me."

The banker staked him. With a considerable loan from another, John bought feeder cattle and fattened them on his beat-down fields. He also bought the ruined crops of several adjoining farms and turned his stock to grazing. And John won his round with misfortune.

Because of the bank's confidence in John Freeman's integrity and judgment, loss was turned to gain. And not only for him. The neighbours got ready cash for crops which otherwise would have been a total loss.

Though this farmer's name is true. "John Freeman," the facts in this story are not. It is typical of the thousand ways in which Canada's Chartered Banks aid credit-worthy people in all walks of life to profit from their individual enterprise and industry.

By banking during morning hours you can help the war effort, facilitate your own business, and lighten the war-time burdens on the man and woman in your branch bank. More than one-third of our experienced men have gone to war.

need to impose additional taxation to provide these subsidies.

If this method is adopted it will be in accordance with your own policy of preventing inflation and it will provide for those with fixed incomes and also guard against inflation or wage increases. It is really the only method by which you can successfully maintain your price ceilings.

"Trusting you to give this matter your careful consideration and will favour me with an early reply. Yours truly, H.E. Nichols, secretary, Alberta Farmers' Union."

In view of the above letter being sent to Mr. Lester, and no reply being received after allowing a fair lapse of time, are you, Mr. Farmer of the Carbon, Alberta, still in agreement with your position with the Dominion Government and yet do nothing about it. You see that there is at that very rate our Union, the Alberta Farmers' Union, is not satisfied and is really getting after the Government officials for a better deal. Are you completely satisfied with the hook-up? Do you let someone else do all the work—work for themselves and yourself? If you feel that way, do you think that you can get a better deal? I suggest such an attitude Mr. Farmer. We need your support. Join our organization and help us FORCE the Government to give us a better deal. If you are not satisfied with the prices you are receiving for your produce, Help us correct them.

In conclusion, although only bona-fide farmers may be members of this Union, we ask you Mr. Editor and Mr. J. Trudeman of the Carbon, Alberta, you possibly can help us in this fight. If you, Mr. Trudeman, are unable to do so, then you can help us by giving the money that you require to pay the wholesaler is to come from the farmers of the district, and the more the farmers are willing to support their districts, it matters not in the least how honest the farmers may be, they will be unable to pay you what they owe you, because you cannot get blood out of a stone.

culture community to emerge from the depths of the most terrible depression that has afflicted the industry in memory. On the other hand, the depression in the agricultural industry in the west has suffered a gross income reduction of two and one-half billions of dollars in the last three years since 1937. In that time most of our farmers were reduced to penury, their wives and families poverty-stricken, their clothed and educated, their houses under equipped, their buildings and machinery dilapidated, their taxes unpaid and drainage payment for both interest and principal in arrears.

"No other industry could have taken the shock and survived. Agriculture took a blow from which it still suffers. With wheat at 30 cents per bushel, cattle $1.00 per 100 lbs, hogs $2.00 per 100 at shipping points, the grain and livestock markets are dead. We have determined that a decade of parity prices, plus Debt Reduction, plus partial release from income tax will be necessary and will enable even a partial recovery to be made."

"The ill-health, ruined hopes and broken morale must be restored in this industry. We believe that in the capacity of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to remedy this situation, and we urge the following suggestions to offer so as to bring the majority of western farmers with the compass of the income tax rating re-estimated."

1. To immediately bring the prices of all farm products up to parity through the agency of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

2. To provide consumer discounts in order to maintain retail prices at previous levels.

3. To be done by following the policy adopted by the Prime Minister of issuing Public Credit in terms of public need so that there will be no

Tens of Thousands of VOLUNTEER WORKERS make your
Red Cross Dollars
Stretch Farther

• Telling daily in selfless devotion, Canadian stretch farthers make YOUR Red Cross dollars count. They sew and knit garments, pack food and supplies and precious boxes for our boys in enemy prisons. Since the war began, Red Cross "Blue Smalls" approved partners made millions of articles for fighters and civilian comfort and relief. These volunteers are YOUR Red Cross dollars—paid in kind. Their women, specially trained, drive cars, trucks, ambulances, help as nurses and nursing aides, office workers and cleaners and drivers, repair houses, too, give their time freely to help relieve human suffering.

The 857,000 members of the Junior Red Cross also work for the Red Cross.

These volunteers are YOUR Red Cross dollars—paid in kind. They go farther for material, food, medical supplies, clothing, shelter, fuel, for our fighters and war victims on the world's war fronts.

This must go on. As the war expands, intensifies, the need grows. Never was the need for YOUR dollars so great.
